1. After discussing the matter with [] who had in turn coordinated with [] of FE, I called Congressman Gwinn in his office in Yonkers. I informed him that there was little I could add to what I had told him on our meeting of 17 March, concerning the [] case. I stated that we would probably send someone to talk with [] again and that the less publicity the case received, the better, as any public indication what type of work in which [] was engaged would certainly decrease the possibility of his emerging alive. I also informed Congressman Gwinn that there had been a few recent releases from Communist Chinese prisons, but those released were at a loss to know why they had been selected for release. Nevertheless, if [] were still alive, there might still be hope that he could be released.

2. I discussed with Mrs. Sharon of the office of Senator Henrikson the case of []. Mrs. Sharon stated that [] had again written to the Senator to seek the disposition of the case. I informed her that the case had been privately discussed by the Senator and Mr. Dulles and that, therefore, it was considered closed by this office. I stated that we had been at fault in the handling of the case originally but, nevertheless, there was no possibility for [] present employment.

[] It was necessary for [] to secure approval for working from the Director of Immigration at []. After discussing the matter with Messrs. Houston, [] and [] on 19 and 20 September, we reached a final determination that it was illegal for [] to work under his present status, that we could probably postpone deportation for several months during which a private bill could be passed, and that Contacts Division should approach [] at a high level and request them to instruct their Director of Immigration to allow [] to work, and assure them that we would make every effort to expedite congressional action in this case.

[] of FE called to state that in connection with their desire to send [] overseas, he had not been able to contact the DDCI for a statement as to the status of the case. He requested that I check this matter with []. I told [] that the best solution would be through DD/P, but he has requested that I seek to obtain some element of the timing of the Department of Justice procedures so that he can properly prepare his memorandum.
